

JCrew Assignment

Using React/ES6 build UI presented below (you can hardcode data model or save it as a json in your local environment). You can use images saved in “images” folder and any icons for search, bag and social networks (for example material icons).

If you prefer to use SASS/LESS instead of CSS for styling – feel free to do that.

This cool puckered fabric takes its name from the Persian phrase "shir-o-shakar" (meaning "milk and sugar"), which describes its alternating smooth and textured stripes. Ours is cut from Japanese cotton, which is woven on vintage looms with an incredible attention to detail.
